

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

the history of Lucas Majozi says it all, as the interviews relates to the historical context and gave me out a similar past of him

Trough this project I have learnt that they is no man on island, together we reach and together we need other for help and also I have learnt that you should be dignified, humbled, and be respective when questionairing the elders and this are leadership qualities and they are also the values, and again I have learnt that you can be a good story teller, book writer and I have learnt that not all the historians are expected to take part but also other subjects learners to know their past. because history is our daily life builder, because we need to know where we from as to whether were are we heading to and it becomes a very sadly embarrassment and humiliation to be as good as you wish but in turn you don't know where you from, so in order to know where you going, you should first know where you from so this project to me has paved that way for me to take every life step that comes and to crab every opportunity that life brings with enthusiasm and passion.

PROBLEMS ENCOUNTERED

- 1. Firstly this project needed a lot of time and sometimes I even forget that im the learner
Because I had to make sure that my project is well done or completed so I had to miss many Class*
- 2. I had to borrow someone's laptop for on weekends to do my project, but that taught me something
In life that, they should be the time management and timetabling so those were the problems that I Came across with but I am pleased.*
